Organic Options to Replace Household Cleaning Chemicals

Banana peels:

- ❖ Rub the inside along leather to spruce it up including dress shoes, a leather jacket, or even running shoes. Wipe away remaining residue with a microfiber cloth for a glossy, looking-like-new sheen.
- ❖ Smear a bit of an over-ripened banana onto wood furniture with your fingers then wipe off with a microfiber cloth. Can also remove ink stains from your skin.

Cucumber peels:

- ❖ Remove marks, including crayon stains, on countertops and walls; & if you want a non-foggy bathroom mirror when you get out of the shower, just rub cucumber peel on it before you start the water.

A raw onion:

- ❖ Run half of a raw onion against your grill grates with the cut side down, it will work to remove all the grease & leftover grit on the grill. Your best option is to heat up your grill first to help burn off any attached food or grime.

Olive oil

- ❖ Add a small amount to a soft cloth, & rub liberally in a circular motion onto your stainless steel surfaces. Once done, wipe over with a paper towel to remove any excess grease.

Soda Water:

- ❖ Splash it over the dirty car window or screen, leave to sit for a few minutes, then wipe off with a sponge. The drink is a great cleaner, removing debris that could be affecting your vision.

White Vinegar & Baking Soda:

- ❖ Use equal parts white vinegar & water to wash both the interior & exterior of your fridge or sink.
